“Winning the War on Terror” is the product of over six months of research, discussions, revisions, and drafting by dozens of individuals. Creating this document would not have been possible without their expertise, skill, wisdom, and hard work.

First, I am grateful for the insight and advice provided by my colleagues in the United States House of Representatives. Jane Harman, the Ranking Member of the House Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence and a senior member of the Select Committee on Homeland Security, contributed her deep understanding of intelligence issues to this project and many sections benefited greatly from her knowledge and experience. The sections on improving our military’s ability to fight terrorists were influenced by my ranking member on the House Armed Services Committee, Ike Skelton. Barney Frank, the senior Democrat on the Financial Services Committee and also a member of the Select Committee on Homeland Security, was extremely helpful in crafting the recommendations on terrorist financing. Other members of the House Select Committee on Homeland Security reviewed this document, made suggestions, and contributed their ideas to the final product. I am especially grateful for the support of Rob Andrews, Ben Cardin, Pete DeFazio, Bob Etheridge, Jim Langevin, Shelia Jackson Lee, Zoe Lofgren, Eleanor Holmes Norton, Bill Pascrell, and Loretta Sanchez. Many thanks as well to Rosa DeLauro, Co-Chair of the Democratic Steering and Policy Committee, and Marty Meehan, Ranking Member of the Subcommittee on Terrorism, Unconventional Threats, and Capabilities.

A series of outside experts were extremely generous with their time as the ideas in this document were developed and refined. I am indebted to the following individuals for their advice and wise counsel: Jeffrey Addicott, Jon Alterman, Brian Atwood, Rand Beers, Rachel Bronson, Ash Carter, Vic Comras, Ivo Daalder, Charles Ferguson, Michele Flournoy, Leon Fuerth, Rose Gottemoeller, Margaret Hamburg, Gary Hart, Dick Howard, Ron Klain, Anthony Lake, Jessica Mathews, John Podesta, Willam Nash, Stephen Nider, Michael O’Hanlon, Nick Rey, Susan Rice, Deborah Rosenblum, Michael Sheehy, Peter Singer, Ted Sorensen, Leonard Spector and Doug Wilson. A great deal of expertise also resides in committee and personal staffs in the House of Representatives. My thanks to Erin Conaton, David Flanders, Marcel Lettre, Bill Natter, and Jim Schweiter for the dedication and skill they brought to this effort.

This work would not have been possible without the leadership of the very capable and talented Director of the Democratic Staff of the House Select Committee on Homeland Security, David Schanzer, and the contributions of our dedicated staff who work every day to ensure that our government is doing all it can to protect the security of the American people. They are: Carla Buckner, Camille Camacho, Peter Cleveland, Glenn Davis, Mike Eichberg, David Grannis, Gwen Hall, Jessica Herrera, Josh Magarik, Mark Magee, Jim McGee, Jason McNamara, Dan Prieto, Sue Ramanathan, John Sopko, Bharathi Sundaram, Al Thompson, and Moira Whelan. The hard work of staff in my personal office – Sundance Banks, Andrew Blotky, Kristen Csehili, Elizabeth Hurley Burks, Louis Jim, Rachel Redington Werner, and Camron Scott – has also made this project possible.

And finally, to Scott Bates, Senior Policy Advisor for the Democratic Staff, who shared my vision for a more enlightened strategy to win the war on terror. Scott's intellect, research, and commitment to our nation's ideals gave substance to this project.
